About Us

Americans are deeply concerned about the corruption they see in our government. They want decision makers and powerful special interests held accountable for their wrongdoing.

Accountable.US is exposing corruption across all levels of government, and holding our policymakers accountable.

We are a nonpartisan watchdog group that is uncompromising in our search for the truth. And we are committed to making sure public officials are advancing policies in the public interest, across a wide range of issues.

What We Do

We use traditional research tactics—such as public records requests, financial disclosure review, voting record analysis, and more—to identify who is influencing public policy debates and why.

We follow the money to explain the government’s actions and motivations.

We work to understand who has the most to gain or lose in policy fights.

We use creative communications and campaigns to make sure Americans understand why their government is taking the actions it is.

And when these actions are hurting the American people, we give Americans the tools they need to make their voices heard.
